How a Circle Column.

A Column Dedicated To Tired Mothers as They Join the Home Circle.

Success in life does not always mean wealth, fame or position. You may be poor in all of these but you can be rich in mind and character. The world within you must be developed before you can enjoy the world without you. If you have wealth put some of it into brain power and you can never lose it. If you are poor you cannot afford to be poor in both mind and pocket. You can have the wealth of a trained mind and a noble character. Rely on your own efforts. Thousands of worthy persons have obtained an education without the assistance of wealth or friends. You can do it. Success often depends on the sacrifices made and obstacles overcome. To succeed in anything requires hard, honest work. Determine to do the best you can with the faculties God has given you.

TO YOUNG MEN.

If young men desire success in life, in the purest and truest sense of the term, success that culminates in a noble, selfless life, enduring, exalting and immortalizing even after passing over the unseen, it is certainly very essential that their character be founded unwavering upon the broad and enduring principles of religion. An unbeliever may become a great man, without doubt, if he has the energy, ambition and talent; but an intellect of the highest order must be based upon Christianity. There exists at the present time so many temptations to lead the young, the pleasure-loving and thoughtless astray, and such an utter disregard of honesty, virtue and truth among many of our leading men, that a wide field of usefulness is open to the honest and upright in heart. Why should not you, young men, just stepping upon the arena of life, bring your intelligence to bear with a strong hand and a clear head in the correction and subduement of many great evils? Will you do it.

TIME DOES IT.

Time has a wonderful power in taking the conceit out of persons. When a young man first emerges from the schools and enters upon the career of life, it is naturally assuming to witness his self-importance—he would have all the world to understand that he has "learned out"—that he is master of all knowledge, and can unravel all mysteries. But as he grows older he grows wiser; he learns that he knows a great deal less than he supposed he did, and by the time he reaches to three score years, he is prepared to adopt his own the sentiment of John Wesley, who said: "When I was young I was sure of everything; in a few years, having mistaken a thousand times, I was not half so sure of most things as I was before. At present I am hardly sure of anything but what God has revealed to man."

HOME INFLUENCES.

Racally and secondarily people come for the most part from cultivated homes, from undisciplined homes. Parents harsh and cruel on the one hand, loose in their government—wickedly loose in their government—are raising up a generation of vipers. A home where coldness and fretfulness are dominated is blood relation to the gallows and the gall. Pettulance is a serpent that crawls up into the family nursery sometimes and crushes everything. Why, then, are parents who even make religion disgusting to their children. They scold them for putting in all their leisure time at church or some church gathering. They have an exaggerated way of doing their duty. The house is full of the warwhoop of contention, and from such a place husband and son go out to die. The world grows old, and the stars will cease to illuminate it, and the waters to refresh it, and mountains to guard it and its long story of sin and shame and glory and triumph will soon turn to ashes; but influences which started in the early home roll on and roll up through all eternity blooming in all the joy, waving in all the triumph, or shrinking back into all the darkness. Father, mother, which way are you leading your children?

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGE.

Truly, marriage, fashionably considered, is as far from marriage humanity or divinely considered as it is possible for a burlesque to be from an original. It is the union of two persons—body, mind and soul—for life, "for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer." In burlesque it is an arrangement by which two persons appear to the world as one, sit together at the table, occupy the same rooms, have their names on the same cards, sit in the same pew and opera box, but beneath which they hide a great deal of incongruity, and behind which they lead separate lives. In the original it is a connection which forms the basis of a home; in the burlesque, it is a connection which furnishes the pretext for keeping up an establishment. In the original it suggests quiet fireside occupations, domestic tastes, books, talk, reading, easy rooms comfortable easy chairs, affectionate confidence between man and woman, plans for entertainment and improvement, household economies, all of the varied enjoyments, that can be had between four walls of brick or wood; in the burlesque it suggests bustle, activity, excitement, engagements to dinner, company, parties where no one thinks of sitting down for a purpose, dexterity, gliding velvet carpets, mirrors, chandeliers and gilt books, absence of confidence, estrangement, divided interests, a late breakfast table with one sitting at it, feminine solitude, and masculine hilarity—do something else in the evening, coldness, indifference, extravagance, absence of economy; intrigue, perhaps.
